

Mole-Humans are typically sturdy and need special equipment to breathe since inhaling too much oxygen may kill them.

Profile

Name: Gunter

Age: Unknown (likely 100+)

Species: Mole- Human

Expertise: Weapons & Alien Technologies

Occupation: Merchant and Inventor of the strangest weapons in DJ 1002 System

Backstory

Very little is known about Gunter before his arrival on planet Tyrion, and the only information he ever shared are that his family was very poor and his childhood was troublesome because of his aspect and his belligerent nature.

His ability to handle alien technology earned him a high reputation, high to the point of luring Mars Houndogs' attention.

He is also renowned for his habit of blasting things and inventing weapons so strong and strange that may blow up an entire city if managed by the wrong hands.

His primary goal is to create the greatest and strongest weapon existent using only scraps and alien technologies no one remembers. That's the reason why he decided to follow the Mars Houndogs in their adventure.

Appearance

Sturdy & Short

He never reveals his face because of the traumas of his past, but he claims to be a proud specimen of Mole-Human.

His armour is quite characteristic since he made it by himself with the best pieces of technology he was able to gather together.

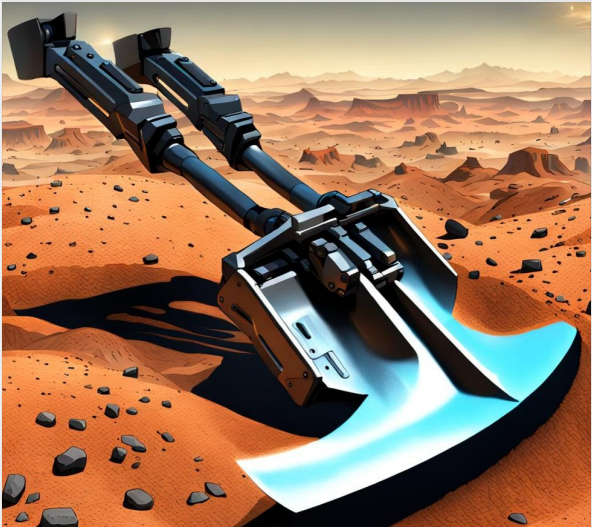

Its appearance is intimidating for anyone who has never seen a Mole-human ready to blow up a planet just for his amusement.

Nature

- Stubborn
- Caustic
- Obsessed with weapons
- Violent
- Loyale

 <https://docs.google.com/presentation/d/1JE8Tt>

Google Docs

His shovel-like weapon able to transform into a grenade launcher

His chaotic weapons shop on planet Tyrion